Assumptions Used in Arriving at Fiscal Estimate

AB-197 would provide for an additional method, as allowed by federal law, for Wisconsin to qualify for an Extended Benefits "on" period. Under current federal law, the employer share of extended benefits is paid by the federal government for claims filed before January 4, 2012. However, the employer portion, where the employer is a state or local government entity, or an Indian tribal entity, is not paid by the federal government. The bill provides for retroactive implementation.

The Department of Workforce Development estimates that enactment of this additional method to qualify for an Extended Benefit "on" period would result in approximately $89 million in benefits paid to unemployed Wisconsin residents through the remainder of the 2011 calendar year. This estimate is based upon DWD and DOR economic projections.

Of the $89 million projection, DWD estimates that approximately $800,000 will be charged to state and local government units. See Fiscal Estimate Worksheet for details.

Long-Range Fiscal Implications

Under current federal law, federal funding for the employer portion of Extended Benefits ends at the close of 2011, so no long range fiscal implications are anticipated.
